PACIFIC COAST SIDE

What Our Neighbors Along the Pacific's Shore Have Been Doing, Are Doing and Will Continue To Do

John Norton, of Sacramento, is in Moss Beach visiting his sister, Mrs. Ed Schnerr.

Miss Lulu Weatherwax of Placer, is occupying her beautiful bungalow at Marine View.

Mr. and Mrs. Rocomi of Mountain View visited J. J. Higgins and family at Half Moon Bay this week.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Knutzen and children of San Mateo were at their bungalow at Marine View Sunday.

Daniel Saur and family, who left Granada nearly two years ago, going to Arizona, are back again to stay.

Mrs. M. J. Bettencourt, with her mother and sister, are visiting Mrs. Dave Adere, another sister, in Los Angeles.

The sand plant at Farallone which was seriously damaged by the high tides, has been repaired and is now pading cars again.

County Clerk Jos. H. Nash was a Farallone visitor last Saturday. Joe looks just as if he would be county clerk another term.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Roberts and Mrs. J. T. Jones of Sacramento spent Wednesday in Moss Beach as the guests of C. B. Smith.

Miss Ingham arrived from Placer during the week and is enjoying one of this ideal summer weather in her home at Marine View.

The telephone company has authorized C. B. Smith, who will be its manager here, to state that it will have service installed here by the 15th of March.

Mrs. Edith Gallagher is making extensive improvements at her new home. The small buildings have all been removed and Mr. Baker has raded the streets and grounds.

High water in all the streams of the coast side indicates that the coming season for steelhead trout, opening April 1, will provide more sport than anglers have had in several years.

T. L. Jordan, Ocean Shore agent at Moss Beach, is acting as chief dispatcher in the city for his company. Mr. Jordan is taking S. S. Seaton's place, who resigned last Sunday and will be in the city until relieved, which hopes will be soon.

Mrs. J. F. Gonzales met with a distressing accident at Half Moon Bay last Wednesday. In crossing a street just graded she had to step up a slight embankment. The earth gave way and, losing her balance, she fell and broke her elbow.

William Souza passed through Half Moon Bay Monday on his way to San Diego, where he is engaged in business. He has been on a visit to his relatives in San Gregorio, where he was born. Mr. Souza says that his new home cannot compare with the old.

It seems good to have the through rains again. Considering the heavy rainfall during January it's a wonder the damage to the railroad was not greater than it was, and it is owing to the able management of Roadmaster Horn that service was able to be resumed when it was.

James Wilson, the contractor for the boulevard over Pedro Mountain, is in Farallone, and he expects to begin work this week. Wilson has a traction steam shovel on the way from the East and several cars of grading and road tools are here now, so it certainly looks as if things are doing "on that blessed road soon."

The Notleys, father and son, doing an extensive business in the feed and mel line in San Mateo, have purchased 640 acres of the Coburn timber and are already engaged in manufacturing it into ties and shingles.

George Notley, the son, is at Pigeon Point managing the enterprise, which is located on Gazos creek about nine miles from Pescadero. Shipments will be made from Pigeon Point, where a store will be established by the firm. A shingle mill is near completion and two big trucks will be utilized to transport its product as well as the output of ties, which will be shipped to Los Angeles in schooners, a number of which the Notleys own. They also have large landed possessions at Shelter Cove, Humboldt county.

ma schools visited relatives and friends on the Coast Side last Saturday and Sunday.

T. L. Lillard, who has had charge of the Stone Sand Plant, near Half Moon Bay has been transferred by his company to Sacramento, where it has a large contract of building levees.

A. E. Cline nad F. E. Littlefield are busily engaged in building Miss Robertson's cottage, in Montara, on the heights near the inn. It is said that these gentlemen will build three more cottages and bungalows at Montara between now and July 1st.

Mrs. Ada Moll, sister of E. B. Morse of Moss Beach, sailed for the Hawaiian Islands, on the steamer Manchuria. She will be away for three months and while there will take in the coming carnival at Honolulu.

The county surveyors who are surveying the coast boulevard between Montara and Half Moon Bay expect to finish that work within the next few days, and the contract will be let very soon. This road will be built with a concrete base and asphaltic surface and when completed will be one of the best and prettiest driveways in the state.

The Half Moon Bay Light and Power Company, who were recently awarded the contract to give Princeton, Marine View, Farallone, Moss Beach and Montara (Montara Highway Lighting District) street lights, have commenced the work of installing 101 lights which will be completed in three weeks. The first work was started at Princeton by the Sea.

While at Salada Beach one day recently we had the pleasure of being escorted through the Salada Beach schoolhouse by Miss Madden, teacher of that school. The Comet man found several big light and airy rooms, ideal for school purposes, and a school library, containing 600 useful books. The basement has been arranged so the Improvement Club of Salada Beach and Brighton Beach have a delightful home.—Comet.

THE SUPERVISORS

San Mateo Supervisors met in regular session Monday with all members present.

M. F. Brown, chief traffic officer, made his report as follows:

Logan—14 days, 1 arrest, 1 conviction, Fine $50.

Brown—14 days, 5 arrests, 2 convictions, 3 cases pending, Fines $30.

Vallejo—13 days, 1 arrest, 1 conviction, Fine $10.

Lowans—14 days, no arrests, Fines $90.

A communication from the Lomita Lighting district designated three members of the improvement club as an auditing committee on the lighting bills was filed, the supervisors having no jurisdiction.

District Attorney Swart stated that it was his desire to file one suit for rights of way between Colma and Half Moon Bay, and would do so as soon as he can get specifications from the surveyor. He urged that particular care must be taken in the selection of viewers, comparing men of good judgment and ability, whose findings will be thorough in every detail, so that there will be no chance of failure in account proceeding on their account.

The California State Automobile Association petitioned the supervisors for permission, which was granted, to paint speed signs on telephone poles, stating that permission had already been granted by the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph Co. The signs are to be seven feet from the ground, painted white with black stripe on either side, fourteen inches wide and in the center will be the speed limit in plain figures, that is claimed can be seen almost as well at night as in daytime. Above and below the speed limit figures there will be painted in small letters and a pointer "To San Francisco" and "To Los Angeles." These signs are to be one mile apart and in addition, there will be special signs at the city limits of municipalities, giving name of city and speed limit.

Plans and specifications for the Bay Shore road were read. This road extends from Uncle Tom's Cabin through San Bruno and South San Francisco and the entire length is 17,500 feet. The total average estimated cost on the four plans is about $65,000.

By motion of Supervisor Casey the office of pound master of the First Township was declared vacant and J. J. Sullivan of Daly City was appointed to the position.

Charles W. Fay, the new postmaster of San Francisco, and manager of the Shore Line Investment Co. at Granada addressed the Supervisors, asking that a change be made in the county highway at Granada, so as to enable the Shore Line Investment Co. to proceed with the construction of a Pavilion at Granada.

He contended that the change would be greatly beneficial to the county in saving an expense of approximately $15,000 in the construction of the highway, and exhibited maps to show the proposed change of route. Supervisor Francis opposed any change that would prevent the free use of the beach by everybody, but after some discussion between him and Mr. Fay there seemed little difference between them. Finally it was decided that two civil engineers, Surveyor Neuman for the county and L. H. Weigel for the Shore Line Investment Co. visit Granada and submit a complete report at the next meeting, March 2.

Plans and specifications were ordered for the Woodside road, at the request of Supervisor MacBain.

The supervisors selected a list of one hundred jurors for the ensuing year, which will be found elsewhere in this issue.

After the allowance of claims, the meeting adjourned until Monday, March 2, 1914.

Marysville Convention

Marysville, the staid little city in the Sacramento Valley, is looming up to Herculean significance these days for the development of the thirty-three counties comprising Northern California is at stake at a conference there.

The Marysville conference opens Thursday, February 19th., a large delegation will be present. San Mateo county interests will be looked after by a strong delegation. Those of the various delegates from the county who for some reason or other cannot attend will be represented by proxies, so that this community may exercise its fullest voting power.

The need of an organization to advertise the worth of Northern California will be thoroughly considered at this meeting.

President H. C. Tuchen of the San Mateo County Development Association and Supervisor W. H. Brown are heading the delegation from this county. Various civic organizations and municipalities of San Mateo county will be represented.

The foremost figures in scientific development and advertisement work will actively participate in the deliberations. Whatever the outcome may be, the Marysville convention will achieve the task of binding closely the relations of the Northern California counties, which interests harmonize.

No doubt this gathering will be productive of many valuable suggestions and plans of co-operation in the great work of educating the nation and the world at large of the countless fields of opportunity that lie undeveloped at our doorsteps.

Jurorettes Organizing

One hundred prominent peninsula clubwomen have received invitations to attend a meeting Friday at the Burlingame town hall for organizing a feminine civic betterment league in San Mateo county. The grand juror, who served recently, are interested. One of the juror, Mrs. Mary Miller of Burlingame, is the temporary chairman of the committee. Mrs. Racine McRoskey, another juror, is the secretary.

Some men who learned to crawl when they were babies never seem to have gotten over it.

San Mateo Roads

The public-spiritedness being shown by the citizens of San Mateo county in demanding good roads and voting large sums for laying out and building highways through the length and breadth of this county, is going to make the peninsula, south of San Francisco, the Mecca of thousands of home-loving people.

Nothing in California, says a reliable San Francisco authority, compares in beauty with this stretch of territory. Its climate is admitted to be the equal of any in the entire world. The recent rains have made this section of the country look like fairy land, and the highways when completed will do the rest. San Francisco will soon have almost as great a suburban travel from the peninsula as it now enjoys from across the bay.

The Coast Side seems to be the center of activity just at the present time, but the activity now presented is bound to be general over the entire peninsula.

The County surveyor's office is busy with highway matters, and from the energy now being shown in building of the highways, it is assumed that when 1915 dawns the highways of San Mateo county will mean to the peninsula what they have meant to the southern part of the State.—Comet.

BUILDING CONTRACTS

The following builders' contracts were filed in the office of the county recorder during the week:

C. C. Moorehouse agrees to do the artificial stone work for the C. Frederick Kohl new residence at Easton for $9750.

Fred J. Mauer agrees to erect for the Warranty Investment Co. in 90 days, a five-room bungalow at "Blossom Heath Manor," Beresford, for $2550.

The Van Sant-Houghton Company agrees to complete the interior wood finishing "trim" in the conservatory and bed rooms of the Geo. A. Pope residence at Burlingame by March 21, 1914, for $2047.

There was an old lady named Brewer, Who was riding a bike, and it threw her. A butcher passed by And said, "Madam, don't cry!" Then fastened her on with a skewer.

No Reductions From Wages

It is the understanding of the Industrial Accident Commission that the reduction of wages of employees to meet the cost of insurance against the compensation risk, or for the medical and surgical benefit, is decidedly opposed to the spirit of the Compensation Act if not to the letter of the law. Specific mention is made in Section 34 of that law that any provision or arrangement between employers and employees for the payment of sick, accident or death benefits must be "IN ADDITION TO THE COMPENSATION PROVIDED FOR BY THIS ACT."

Secs. 12, 13 and 15 team with reference to the fact that the employer himself is solely liable for compensation payments. The law places the obligation on him, as insurer of his employees, to make the payments.

If there be any arrangement between employers and employees for benefits "in addition to the compensation provided for by this Act," then Sec. 34 clearly states that, insofar as the compensation benefits are concerned, they are not subject to any provision or arrangement between employers and employees, and therefore are excluded.

The theory of compensation is to transfer the burden from the injured to the industry. This cannot be done if the employees are required, or voluntarily continue to pay directly. Brief experience in the administration of the new Law has convinced the Industrial Accident Commission that some employers are contemplating assessing their employees in excess of the total amount of insurance. Not only is this wrong, but it is immoral to make a profit out of such a situation. The best method is for the employer to carry along the premium into the cost of the business, and this will be done in many occupations, and, as time goes on, it will considered one of the charges of production that should rightly be added to the cost distribution and thus ultimately borne by the consumers. Inasmuch as the workers form the great majority of the consumers they pay their share of the cost when they make their purchases, and if they are also assessed directly by the employer through deductions from wages, they are doubly taxed.

Onward, Christian Soldiers!

Let Oakland hang its diminished head. Its police force is no longer the finest. Sacramento now wears the diadem. On Sunday the sleuths of that metropolis—or should we say capitolis?—successfully stole upon and arrested, red-handed, ten small boys congregated in a barn and engaged in the soul-destroying pastime of pennyante.

The Oakland police have lately wrestled in a crude way with the Demon Poker, and are quite swelled up. But the Sacramento police are of sterner stuff. They nip original sin in the bud, hunt the Demon Poker in his youthful-lair and clip his claws and pull his teeth while they are in the milk, so to speak.

While honoring the daredevil bravery of the guardians of the capitol's peace, we fear that they have come little short of doing their full duty. They have indeed rebuked Satan in the shape of penny-ante. But there are other devices of the great adversary still undestroyed.

Have the police of Sacramento, for example, never stopped to consider that the game of two-old-cat, upon which pins are frequently wagered, is regularly played by godless youths in vacant lots within sight of the capitol itself?

The United States Capitol

The capitol of the United States has been located at different times at the following places: At Philadelphia from September 5, 1774, to December, 1776; at Baltimore, December 20, 1776, to March, 1777; Philadelphia, March 4, 1777, to September, 1777; Lancaster, Pa., September 27, 1777; to September 30, 1777; York, Pa., September 30, 1777, to July, 1778; Philadelphia, July 2, 1778, to June 30, 1783; Princeton, N. J., June 30, 1783, to November 20, 1783; Annapolis, Md., November 26, 1783, to November 30, 1784; Trenton, N. J., from November, 1784, to January, 1785; New York, January 11, 1785, to 1790.

Then the seat of government was removed to Philadelphia, where it remained until 1800, since which time it has been in Washington.

SUPERIOR COURT

Cases Pending, in Progress, Settled, With Interesting Details to San Mateo County Folks

The papers on appeal from the justice court of the Fifth Township in the case of W. J. Debenedetti against C. V. Thompson, have been received and filed in the county clerk's office.

R. S. K. MacMillan has brought suit against the Crocker Estate Company to compel the later to execute a deed to lots 29 and 30 in block 19, Crocker Tract, to him. The complaint recites the fact that in 1907 an agreement was entered into between the parties whereby plaintiff was to pay a monthly installment on the property until the full amount was paid. Plaintiff claims to have done this and now wants a deed to the property, which defendant refuses to give him.

Christina Ettlin has commenced an action against F. A. Smack to recover the sum of $490 for rent of a certain building in Daly City. Defendant rented the place on November 26, 1912. Mr. Smack succeeded William Raven, who leased the property on September 1, 1911, for a period of three years. He became bankrupt in 1912 and defendant bought his stock of liquor and succeeded to the business held by Raven.

Ethel Soule Cook has brought suit for an interlocutory decree of divorce against her husband, Joseph W. Cook, on statutory grounds.

The National Brewing Company has brought suit against F. O. Brandt to recover the sum of $1648.98 for merchandise, ware and goods delivered defendant during the two years last past.

The Bank of Italy has brought foreclosure proceedings against R. S. Harris to recover the sum of $500, costs of suit and attorney fees in the sum of $150 and the further sum of $125 for money advanced in connection with the property. The real estate on which the mortgage is to be foreclosed consists of a portion of block 35, Eastern Addition to the town of San Mateo.

Horace Hill Jr., et al has commenced an action against L. W. Williams to determine adverse claims and clouds upon title to 985 acres in the Fifth township.

PROBATE.

Hannah Sullivan has applied for letters of administration upon the estate of Jeremiah Sullivan, who died at San Mateo on December 5, 1913. The estate consists of real estate consisting of town lots at San Mateo and a parcel of land in the town of Mayfield. The personal property is worth $100. The value of the estate is unknown to the petitioner. However, it will exceed in value the sum of $10,000. The heirs at law are the petitioner, widow of the deceased, and the following children, all residing in San Mateo: Annie H. Sullivan, Mary E. Madden, Kate Z. Keating, Lena N. McDermott, Timothy P. Sullivan and Daniel J. Sullivan.

Abbie W. Fullerton has applied for letters of guardianship upon the person and estate of Ernestine Claxton, a minor, who, being over the age of 14 years, and being competent to select her guardian, nominated the petitioner to be her guardian. There is no estate. Grace M. Claxton is the present guardian and Mrs. Fullerton wishes to displace her. The minor is 17 years old. The parties reside at San Mateo.

Otis M. Carrington has applied for letters of administration upon the estate of Walter R. Nobs, who died in South America on September 1, 1913. The estate consists of cash in the San Mateo County Savings Bank, amounting to $892.65 and the sum of $65.28 on deposit in the First National Bank of Redwood City.

Pietro Molinari has applied for letters of administration upon the estate of Domenico Canepa, who died at Colma on February 1, 1914. The estate consists of money in the bank, the amount of which is unknown to petitioner, and an interest in a vegetable garden at Colma. The entire value of the estate does not exceed the sum of $1500. The heirs at law are a brother and two sisters living in Italy.

Any bad man can pick out flaws in good government.

How They Forecast Storms.

Many people have an idea that there is something mysterious and occult about the weather. The Weather Bureau in forecasting the coming of storm, frosts, and floods. Not a few think that the forecasters must necessarily get their data by reading the planets, the stars, and the moon. As a matter of fact, the forecaster of the bureau foretells the coming of disturbances in a businesslike way, very similar to that in which a man who has ordered a shipment of goods would estimate the date of its arrival.

Suppose a business man had ordered a carload of pineapples from the Hawaiian Islands. He would know the average time it would take the steamer to make the trip to the Pacific port, the average time for unloading into refrigerator cars, and the average number of days to be allowed these cars for their trip across the continent to New York. His estimate, however, would be subject to error, because the steamship might be delayed by fog or the cars might meet with an accident.

Storms, like pineapples, as a rule do not originate in the United States. They come to us, some from the Philippines, Japan, Siberia, Alaska, Canada, or the Gulf of Mexico. The Weather Bureau gets cable, telegraphic, or wireless notice of a foreign storm. Station after station, or vessel after vessel reports the storm's arrival in its neighborhood, so that the general direction and rate can be determined very early. In fact, the arrival of some storms can be foretold 10 days in advance.

The forecasters watch for the region of low barometer which is the storm center around which the winds blow. This whirl or eddy moves bodily forward with the general latitudes. The forecaster determines the direction of movement of the storm.

When weather disturbances are reported, the forecasters know from experience about how long it takes them to reach our Pacific coast, and then how long after they will reach the Atlantic coast. For example, if a storm coming from Siberia drifts eastward around the North Pole and reappears in Alaska, it should appear in Washington and Oregon in about two days; should get to the Great Lakes in six days and to the Atlantic coast in seven or eight days.

Unexpected conditions may delay storms or divert them from the straight track, just as a refrigerator car may be thrown off its schedule or be shipped by accident on a wrong road. Some of these storms deplete themselves by running into regions of high barometer which are of greater magnitude and extent than the storm itself. Some of them, however, travel completely around the world.

To keep tab on cold waves that come into the United States from Canada and Alaska, the Weather Bureau studies the Canadian Weather reports. England sends reports from Ireland, the British Islands, and Continental Europe, and daily reports come from St. Petersburg on the conditions in Russia and Siberia.

The same businesslike system used in tracing the track of a storm is applied in determining the arrival of frosts.

Flood forecasts are made in much the same way. Information as to the amount of rainfall at the head waters of streams that cause floods are covered by telegraphic reports sent by local observers. As this rain reaches the main channel, the height of the water in the channel is determined by successive gauging stations. Past records establish how much a height, say, of 20 feet of Dubuque, Iowa, will produce at Davenport, another station 80 miles down the Mississippi. This plan is followed all the way down the river, and at each point full allowance is made for the effects of water from tributaries, and from additional and local rainfall. As a result of these observations in the recent flood the people of Cairo had warning a week or 10 days in advance. The Pittsburgh district can be given only 12 to 24 hours notice, because a flood is upon them within 24 hours after a heavy rain storm.

For the Home Town

If the town has a lot of vacant stores, idle factories, mills running on half time, there can be no substantial value to property. Therefore to keep the stores rented the dwellings occupied and a general good tone to property values it is necessary that you give to your home people your entire support. Patronizing mail order houses is not altogether limited to poor people or to farmers or to people who do not know the hurt they are doing the home town, but it is a common practice among certain well-known, well-to-do men. I believe this is more the result of thoughtlessness and of being misled by embellished and highly exaggerated descriptions than through a spirit of antagonism to the home merchant. Moreover, I firmly believe that when you think over this matter seriously and carefully analyzing it in every detail, hereafter you will give your home merchant your trade.

Industrial Accident Commission

As a result of a widespread request from employers, attorneys and employees throughout the State, the Industrial Accident Commission has interpreted several of the more important clauses of the Workmen's Compensation, Insurance and Safety Act previous to any case having been brought before it for adjudication. The following rulings are not to be looked upon as being the final opinions of the Commission; they have been made subject to change or modification.

The Commission holds that chauffeurs, private or otherwise, come under the Compensation Provisions of the Workmen's Compensation, Insurance and Safety Act without any election on the part of the employer being necessary. They are not to be classed as household domestic servants.

It has also expressed itself as being of the opinion that the reasonable cost of necessary transportation immediately connected with the injury is a proper charge for medical treatment under the Compensation Act.

It has ruled that members of voluntary fire departments, operating without remuneration, and public officers, who serve without remuneration, are entitled to medical and surgical benefits, but are not entitled to any other compensation benefits.

In the case of farm employees, it expresses the opinion that work done on a farm by employees of the farmer for the maintenance and operation of such farm, is excluded from the compulsory provisions of the Compensation Law, but that such farm employees, however, can proceed against their employers by means of a suit for damages, said suit being filed under the first two sections of the Roseberry Act.

The Commission has also stated that it will assume jurisdiction where employers residing in California and employees residing in California make a contract of hire in California, without reference where any accidental injury or death may take place.

In each case where subdivisions 1 and 2 of subsection (a) of section 17, of the Compensation Act cannot reasonably and fairly be applied, the Industrial Accident Commission holds that it will seek to ascertain the average annual earnings by testimony showing the earnings throughout the year of the individual concerned.

March to Washington

"By the first of next week at the latest we will start our march for Washington," was the statement Tuesday morning of Chas. Kelly, Generalissimo of the unemployed. Kelly is confident that all of the men now under arrest will be released Wednesday.

"We want help most of all in the form of clothing, especially underclothing," Kelly says. "We want to start clean and stay clean. Appeals for help are meeting with gratifying response."

"When we leave this city we will be 3000 strong," Kelly declares; "1500 are already signed. We will cross the bay in a special ferry, from Oakland we go by rail to Ogden, thence to Council Bluffs Ia., and by July 1st I expect to be on the banks of the Mississippi."

"We cross the river at Davenport, thence to Chicago, then through the Ohio valley and Pennsylvania to Washington. The army will not walk a step of the way; we are going by rail and by water. From Ogden we will clean up the country as we go. We should have at least 100,000 men when we reach the national capital."

Kelly was in conference with Mayor Rolph and is confident of enlisting his support to aid the unemployed in leaving the city. The men are now united among themselves, Wm. Thorn and others who opposed Kelly at first now being enthusiastic adherents of the "On to Washington" movement; and in the headquarters at 471 Tehama street the preparations for moving the great army and the gathering of supplies goes steadily on.

The one meal a day plan was inaugurated Tuesday at the municipal soup kitchen. Between 7 and 11 a. m. about 2200 men were fed. Some 200 men are provided with work for the next four days. The money is dribbling into the funds slowly and it is problematical how long the operation may be continued. There is practically no call for men from private sources, according to those in charge at the employment bureau.

Nothing Doing.

The blizzard howled and the Pneumonia Germ went forth seeking whom he might devour.

He espied a fair maiden who was garbed in a gauzy smile and whose chest was exposed from the throat to the Solar Plexus.

"Ah," exclaimed the Pneumonia Germ, "a cinch." And he grappled with his helpless victim.

But investigation demonstrated that the girl was covered with hives and prickly heat.

"Stung," gasped the Germ, as he curled up and croaked.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

FRIENDSHIP

By Elbert Hubbard

The desire for friendship is strong in every human heart. We crave the companionship of those who can understand. The nostalgia if life presses, we sigh for "home," and long for the presence of one who sympathizes with our aspirations, comprehends our hopes, and is able to partake of our joys.

A thought is not our own until we impart it to another, and the confessional seems a crying need of every human soul. The desire for sympathy dwells in every human heart.

We reach the divine through some one, and by dividing our joy with this one we double it and come in touch with the universal.

The sky is never so blue, the birds never sing so blithely, our acquaintances are never so gracious as when we are filled with love for some one.

Being in harmony with one we are in harmony with all. The lover idealizes and clothes the beloved with virtues that only exist in his imagination.

The beloved is consciously or unconsciously aware of this, and endeavors to fulfill the high ideal; and in the contemplation of the transcendent qualities that his mind has created, the lover is raised to heights otherwise impossible.

Should the beloved pass from the earth while this condition of exaltation exists, the conception is indelibly impressed upon the mind, just as the last earthly view is said to be photographed upon the retina of the dead.

The highest earthly relationship is in its very essence fleeting, for men are fallible and living in a world where material wants jostle, and time and change play ceaseless parts, gradual obliteration comes and disillusion enters.

But the memory of a sweet companionship once fully possessed, and snapped by Fate at its supremest moment can never die.

All other troubles are swallowed up in this. And if the individual is of too stern a fiber to be completely crushed into dust, time will come bearing healing and the memory of that once ideal condition will chant in the heart a perpetual eucharist.

And I am glad the world has passed forever from the nightmare of pity for the dead; they have ceased from their labors and are at rest. But for the living, when death has entered and removed the best friend, Fate has done her worst; the plummet has sounded the depths of grief and thereafter nothing can inspire terror.

At one stroke all petty annoyances and corroding cares sink to nothingness. The memory of a great love lives enshrined in undying amber. It affords a ballast 'gainst all storms that blow, and though it lends an unutterable sadness it imparts unspeakable peace.

Where there is this haunting memory of a great love lost, there is always forgiveness, charity and a sympathy that makes the man brother to all who suffer and endure.

The individual himself is nothing; he has nothing to hope for, nothing to lose, nothing to win. And this constant memory of the high and exalted friendship that was once his is a nourishing source of strength; it constantly purifies the mind and inspires the heart to nobler lives and diviner thinking.

A LADY MAYOR'S LOGIC

The Mayor of Warrenton, Ore., is Miss Clara Cynthia Munson, who has the distinction of being the only woman Mayor in the West and, strange to say, is not an ardent believer in woman suffrage. But her authority does not stop at the Mayoralty; she holds, besides, the offices of Chief of Police and City Attorney, and she has original ideas on the saloon question, which are worth repeating.

Here is the situation: In Astoria, seven miles away, are fifty saloons; in Hammond, three miles away, are four saloons. The question arose of reissuing a license to a saloon in Warrenton.

"I had to thresh out this problem," says the Lady Mayor. "The license fee is $400 a year. There are few women here in favor of the saloon, and no one in favor of what the saloon stands for. I thought the thing out and decided that as long as the government and the saloon man were in partnership, it was not fair to punish the weaker—the saloon man."

"As long as you and I and the others who constitute the government tell the saloon man he may pay a certain sum to carry on his business, all we can do is to see that he does not transgress the laws. The real solution of the problem is for the government not to become the silent partner of the liquor men."

Her view is at least original, and there are many who will admire her logic.

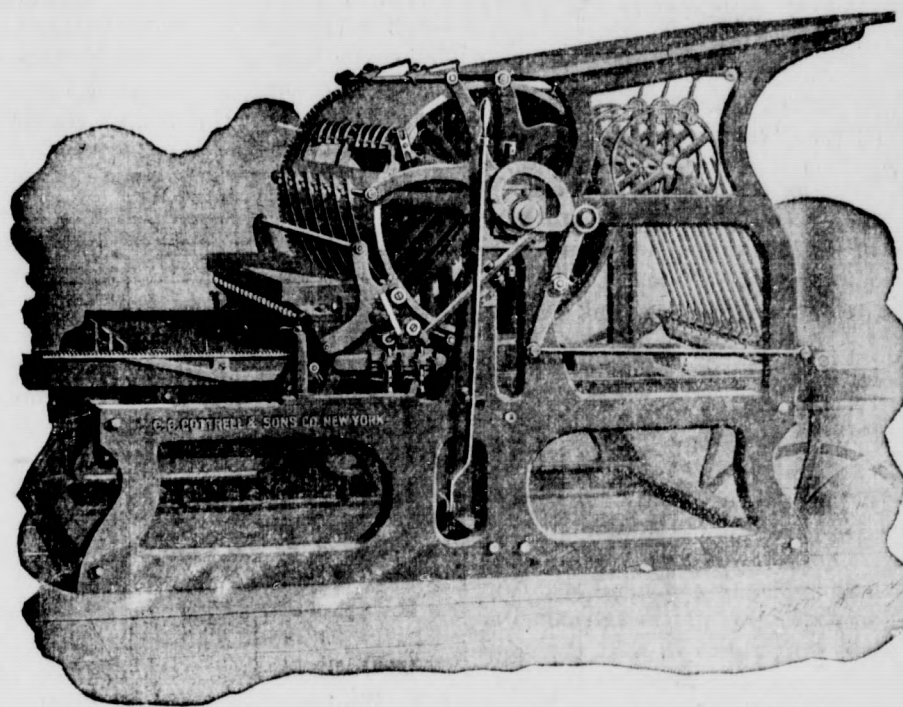

THE MODERN MAUDE MULLER

Maude Muller on a summer's day
Was not in the meadow raking hay.
Such rustic sport she could scarce pursue
In a hobble skirt and a peek-a-boo.
But although the weather was scorching hot
She was trying the steps of the turkey trot.
When the Judge came by he was shocked to see
Through that X-ray gown to a jeweled knee?
Did he catch his breath or his shoulders shrug
When she changed her steps to the bunny hug?
Well he might have done in the days gone by
When rustic maidens were mostly shy.
But this Judge and Maude just made a pair
In a turkey trot and a grizzly bear.
They plighted their troth; were married in June,
And their wedding march was a ragtime tune.

One may be two-faced without having a double chin.

ORDERS CALLED FOR AND DELIVERED

THE ABILITY OF HUMOR.

Cousin Bill Taft tells this one on himself:
"I was en route to Philadelphia one day this week and had about 20 minutes to wait until train time. Consequently I went into a neighboring drug store to buy a shaving stick. The clerk started at me as he wrapped it up and then remarked:

"You're the dead image of Taft."

"Please don't emphasize the dead part of it so," was the reply. "I feel very much alive."

This story leads an eastern paper to remark that "but for the saving grace of a sense of humor, Taft might be a noxious old man, withdrawn from the world and wrapped up in dreams of the past."

It is Cousin Bill's pronounced good nature that has made him loveable—and usable. And it is really a big quality in any man whom it doesn't render blind to the practicalities. It explains why Taft could remain fat and happy and unsophisticated through a long career of political job-holding.

It is the fellow who can see the humorous in the hard scramble for wealth who lasts longest. Perpetual seriousness softens disaster and a joke takes the sting out of defeat. There's nothing much sadder than a big man gone stale.

Tie Cousin Bill Taft to a post with a ten-foot rope and he would kick some holes in the ground with his heel, tear off a pants button, take out his jack-knife and start a game of golf with as many holes as the rope would permit. It is his biggest and finest quality to come up smiling, and he'll be round and arge and ruby, and probably useful, after much abler men of his day have dried in their shells, figuratively speaking.

INTERESTING FIGURES

Some interesting figures are given in the reports just published of the central committees of Austrian unions for 1912. During the first few months of the year the number of trade unionists increased by 30,000, but this was followed by a setback, partly due to the outbreak of the balkan War and partly to the secession of nearly 5000 "Czech separatists." Still, during the year the number of unionists in the federation rose by 500 to 428,363. The receipts for the year amounted to about 400,000, and the funds now amount to about £600,000, of which he richest union, that of the printers, holds £156,000. The number of women in the unions, which twenty years ago was only 2200, has risen to more than 50,000. An interesting illustration of the absurdity of the capitalist division of the world into nations is the fact that in the so-called "nation" or "empire" of Austria the trade unionists are made up of the following quite distinct races: 322,000 German-Austrians, 70,000 Czechs (in addition to the 5000 separatists), 20,000 Poles, 9,000 Italians, 6,000 Slovans and 1,000 Ruthens—all united for protection against the common enemy, the capitalism of that part of the globe, which the maps call "Austria," and of the rest of the world.

EXIT THE AGES OF FAITH.

A California prospector is drilling for oil on the shore of the Sea of Galilee. The Jaffa and Jerusalem Railroad has earned a dividend on its common stock. Bethlehem reports quite a building boom. These are actual reports from Palestine.

Steam, electricity and gasoline are rapidly rubbing the venerable sanctity of ages off of acient holy places. The Grand Lama has an automobile shipped to him by an American firm, and an aeroplane, with a Frenchman aboard lit alongside the oldest and most famous of the Mohammedan monasteries a few weeks ago. Some fine day a Yankee promoter will come back with a franchise for an electric railway in Mecca, after winning out in an initiative and referendum election.

The age of faith and romance has about disappeared. The age of utilitarianism is at hand. Doubtless an automobile is much more comfortable than a camel, and a bungalow with a bath far more desirable than a tent and a waterhole. Still, we are rather glad to have lived before all the picturesqueness was wiped off the face of the earth.

TWO POINTS OF VIEW.

In order to see how it feels to be a millionaire for a day, one "Butch" McDevitt threw away the few thousand dollars he had in twenty-four hours of revelry.

The late Collis P. Huntington once significantly remarked that no one would ever track him through life by any quarters he had unnecessarily dropped.

Perhaps the opposite points of view may explain why Mr. Huntington was a real millionaire and Mr. McDevitt is only a dream.

The best of us err, it is claimed. Even Franklin Swart, whom we thought would complete his term without a single mistake, has fallen down. He failed to take the San Mateo Times into his confidence, which is an unpardonable sin.—Comet.

The man under arrest at Tacoma on a charge of having twenty living soulmates might while away his hours in prison by writing a book on the secret of courtship.

The average unenfranchised woman will prefer paying her income tax to the possibility of paying a $1000 fine in addition to the tax.

It looks as if the New York Legislature would have to provide for a few new penitentiaries before adjournment.

The trouble about joy riding with blondes is that you are liable to wind up in a brunette hearse.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Milky Way.

I dreamed I was a milkmaid
And had a little pail.
To milk cows I was not afraid.
I felt I could not fail.

My path it was the Milky way.
I stepped from star to star.
I went along so bright and gay,
The world seemed off so far.

I looked around. Each tiny star
Saucily winked at me
And seemed to say, "Little maid, you are
As pretty as pretty can be."

You lovely, lovely, shining things,
I'll try to count you, I said.
Oft I've counted butterflies' wings
As over the green grass they sped.

Oh, dear—oh, dear, what a time I had
Tripping along on my starry way
As I tried to count! But I was so glad
When the sun waked me and it was day!

An Observing Puppy.

A clergyman writes from Houlton, England, to record an instance of a very high order of intelligence in an animal, of a power of reasoning:

"I have a pup aged ten months and a dog four years old, both of which live in the house and are great pets. A short time ago my wife was ill. Though the older dog, owing to his quiet and sedate way, was allowed to enter her room, the puppy was never admitted. The nurse could always tell which dog was at the door, because the older dog gave one single and gentle scratch and then remained quiet, while the puppy scratched violently and frequently and whined. The puppy apparently could not understand why she was not admitted and felt her exclusion sorely. One day she scratched furiously, as usual. No notice was taken. Presently she was heard going 'top-flop' downstairs. In a few minutes the single gentle scratch of the old dog was heard. The door was opened, and there were both dogs. "Strange to say, from that time the puppy so imitated the scratch of the other dog that it was impossible to tell which was at the door. Undoubtedly the puppy went and asked the old dog to show her how he gained admission. How else can one explain the fact?"

Houses Without Nails.

In Alberta, Canada, there is a village of houses which have been constructed without nails, says the Detroit Free Press.

These houses have been built by Ruthenian immigrants, and their architecture is very novel. Their first attempts at house building are usually of the kind they had been accustomed to in Europe, and their buildings are of the typical Ruthenian style—log, pitch roofed, thatched and wide in the eaves. In many cases these buildings are put up without a dollar's worth of hardware.

Even the door, an affair of slender twigs woven and laced together, swings on homemade hinges and is latched with a wooden hasp. The floor is of hewn logs, unnailed. The roof, as the favorite Russian roof always is, is a wonderful fabric of poles and cross woven wheat straw, ten inches thick, packed tight and solid and laid with such care that it will shed the weather for twenty years.

Flower Language.

Flowers have a language of their own. Now, were you to send a bouquet to your best friend it would be well to know that a full blown rose means beauty, garden marigold means uneasiness, garden anemone means expectation, geranium means gentility, goldenrod means precaution, holly means foresight, honeysuckle means bond of love, hyacinth means game, ivy means true friendship, laurel means glory, lily means innocence, lily of the valley means return of happiness, lotos means silence, maple means reserve, marigold means despair, narcissus means egotism, orange blossom means marriage, pansy means thought, passion flower means superstition, and peony means shame.

Origin of Sayings.

A thoroughbred gamecock shows only red and black feathers, and a crossbreed is known by a white feather in its tail. Hence "to show the white feather" conveys a strong notion of cowardice, from one point of view at least.

One may search the Scriptures in vain for any allusion to Job's turkey. The expression "As poor as Job's turkey" had its origin in the brain of a humorist, Sam Slick. He described this bird as being possessed of but one feather in its tail and as of so feeble a constitution that it was only by leaning against a fence that it was enabled to gobble.

Exclamations.

Among the curious exclamations in everyday use, "Hello!" and "Hurrah!" have perhaps the most curious origins attributed to them. It is said that the people of Carnwood forest, Leicestershire, England, when they desire to hail a person at a distance, call out not "hello!" but "hallou!" This, a well known author says, is simply a survival of the time when one cried to another, "A loup, a loup!" or "A wolf, a wolf!"

"Hurrah!" according to M. Littré, is derived from the Slavonic buray, "To Paradise!" which signified that all soldiers who fell fighting went straight to heaven.

John's History.

"Now, tell me, John, why Washington crossed the Delaware?" asked teacher.

"Cause all the other rivers were too far away at that time," promptly answered John.

BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDY ON

GOOD CONFESSION VS. BAD CONFESSION.

Luke 12:1-12—Feb. 22.

"Whoever shall confess Me before men, him shall the Son of Man also confess before the angels of God.—V. 8.

A LARGE crowd surrounded the Savior, anxious to hear Him. Jesus addressed His disciples, saying, "Beware ye of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy." Here, as elsewhere in His teachings, Jesus used leaven as a symbol of an evil influence. We know not one instance in which leaven is used to represent anything good or pure.

Jesus declared that the hypocrites practised by the Pharisees were leaven, sin, contaminating. His disciples should be honest, sincere, pure, free from cant and deception. He declared that ultimately all hypocrites and sinners will be uncovered. Undoubtedly He meant that during His Kingdom the secrets of mankind will be exposed. No doubt this will constitute the basis of the shame which will be the punishment of many, as foretold.

Fear Not Persecution.

Jesus intimated that honesty of life would bring His followers persecution from hypocrites; but that they should not fear, even though it resulted in their death. The life worth considering is the everlasting one which eventually may be attained through the merit of Jesus' sacrifice. They should have no fear of man, but fear lest they be separated from God.

"Fear Him who after He hath killed the body hath power to cast into Hell." The word Hell here is Gehenna in the Greek. Primarily, this is the name of the valley outside Jerusalem into which was cast for utter destruction, and into which the vilest criminals were cast after execution—not to torment them, but to imply that there was no future for the wicked. Jesus used Gehenna as a type of the Second Death, the portion of all who intelligently, deliberately, sin against knowledge.

As God's people become intimately acquainted with Him and realize that He is the Friend of all who love righteousness, their love for Him increases. As God forgets not the sparrows, so He will not forget them. Even a hair of their heads could not be injured without His knowledge and permission. Everything He permits to come to His children will work out for them some blessing.

"Confess Me Before Men."

Jesus' words were addressed to His disciples, not to the masses. None could deny Him who had never acknowledged Him. Whoever professes to be His disciple, and then ignores the Master's teachings, misrepresents Him, denies Him, and will not share in the glorious presentation of the Bride, in the end of this Age.

The masses, of course, were in doubt. Some even derided Jesus, saying that He had a devil and was mad. The Master declared that such misunderstandings and slander were quite forgivable if done ignorantly. But when some went beyond this, and declared that His good works were accomplished through Satanic power, they were committing inexcusable sins, which could not be passed over.

The Master's teachings were purity itself. His conduct, His sayings and His miracles were all good works. Only wilful perversity could attribute these to Satan. The fact that they would never be forgiven does not signify, however, that the vilifiers were lost. They would suffer punishment proportionate to their wilfulness. If the punishments bring reformation, well and good; if not, their course will eventuate in utter destruction—the Second Death.

Few subjects are less understood than the sin against the Holy Spirit. The word spirit here stands for influence, power. The spirit of Satan is the power, influence, adverse to God and righteousness. The spirit of Truth, the Spirit of God, the Holy Spirit, represents Divine influence, power. Each individual's responsibility is proportionate to his enlightenment. The mentally and morally blind have comparatively little responsibility, because they do not appreciate clearly the distinctions between the spirit of Truth and the spirit of Error, the Spirit of God and the spirit of Satan.

Sin has wrought death, not merely to man's body, but to his mind, his conscience. Ability to discern between right and wrong therefore varies. Additionally, some have opportunities for instruction more than others. The world in general knows not God, and hence could not sin against the Holy Spirit to a degree punishable with the Second Death.

The Lord's faithful followers were to expect that amongst their tribulations would be false accusations which would bring them before magistrates. The disciples, usually unlearned, would feel great trepidation in the presence of educated officials. They were to know, however, that the Lord's blessing would be upon them, and were to commit all to Him. Nothing in this implies that Christian ministers should not study their subject.—2 Tim. 2:15.

ANOTHER FEATHER

There are few men in this day and age who deserve the unstinted and unanimous praise that has been given Henry Ford, the automobile maker, who is sharing his profits with the men who have made them. He has told why he has adopted that plan and hundreds have commented and discoursed on its possible effect on his business, his men and his competitors.

There is one feature in the remarkable and unusual decision and action of Ford, however, that may have been overlooked. Should he die, what would his direct heir do? Many men who have piled up dollars and dollars have sons who are helping them spend it—and Ford has a son. You wouldn't have known it by the statement he made when he first announced his "big scheme." He said: "Why should I want to accumulate a big estate? I have nobody to leave it to."

As a matter of fact, he has a son, but what he means by saying that he has no one to whom to bequeath a great fortune is that the only heir he has is WORKING and has been brought up to WORK HARD for a living and is now engaged in doing so. That Ford prefers not to rob his next generation of the incentive of self-dependence is one more feather in his cap.

THE WISEST man could ask no more of fate
Than to be simple, modest, manly, true,
Safe from the many, honored by the few.

—Lowell.

Some one who don't like the Double-(c)ross exposure, says the Record has no circulation. All the same everybody reads it and many of the copies are worn out in passing from one to another.

The Tattler's suggestion about "muck-raking" hits the common stench in the solar plexis. There is enough and then some, going on now that might be treated upon. For instance, that itemized statement of the trustees for the past 22 months.

A prominent citizen of Daly City remarked the other day, "that the citizens were under untold obligations to the Record for its alertness and careful watchfulness of the city affairs, for without the Record, God only knows what the solid three wouldn't do."

So Spellman's bid of $590 for boring that well did not include the well casing, and the city must pay for that extra. P. W. Newell's bid of $592 did include the well casing. That looks as though the city got the Double-(c)ross as well as the other contractors.

The difference between a reformer and a roughneck is that if a reformer saw an old woman hugging home a chunk of fire wood as large as herself, he would turn her over to the proper authorities that they might investigate and discover where she stole the wood. But the roughneck would be more likely to carry the wood home for the woman.

That "Tattler," enlarged in form and changed from a monthly to semi-monthly, in its clean-cut, fair and square independence, is certainly creditable and deserving of the utmost success. The Record is glad to welcome legitimate competition and especially so in this case, for the Tattler seems imbued with that same spirit of advancement of Daly City's best interests, such has always been striven for by the Record. 'Tis a booster and boosters are never in the way.

It is reported that at the last meeting of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor they decided to establish a lecture bureau throughout the country for the purpose of bringing about a wider and better understanding of the principles of unionism. Such a bureau should be established for it would be of great value for its educational feature, both to those in the movement as well as outside.

The Battle Creek Enquirer (Michigan), speaking for his State, shouts to the Japanese farmer to come hither; they want him. What could be finer? He would better go straight from Japan, however; after he has lived on the West Coast he would never be contented elsewhere. It is noble of the Wolverines but so far as the city of Battle Creek is concerned, we think the call to the "farmers" is a disguise. The Postites want cheap labor in their fodder factories.

The women on the Grand Jury in San Mateo County, who demanded further investigation of the bookkeeping of county officers, and got their pay held up in consequence, are continuing their investigations, without office and without pay. It was Mrs. Racine McRoskey, leader in the investigation and at whose home the meetings are held, who said, when she was drawn to serve: "What am I to do? I don't know the first thing about the duties of a juror." She has certainly proven an apt scholar.—San Francisco Star.

SPLENDID SUGGESTIONS

Hon. Edward Freyer Points The Way To Harmony and the Up-building of Daly City.

(The following letter appeared in the last issue of the Tattler and is so good, that the Record is pleased to reproduce it—Editor.)

"Dear Sir:—Answering your letter of January 7th, requesting an expression of my views relative to the up-building of Daly City—Harmony of thought and Unity of action are the most potent factors needed in the up-building of our city.

"We should adopt as our motto, that of the state of Kentucky, 'United We Stand, Divided We Fall.'"

"We should unite in the election of men of recognized ability and honesty to administer the affairs of our city. Partisan Politics should be entirely eliminated from our midst—because they breed discord.

"Improvement Clubs are Good Promoters and they should be encouraged. Good men and women who are actuated wholly by patriotism and civic pride can accomplish a great deal.

"A movement should be inaugurated to beautify our city. The planting of trees on every resident street in the city would not only enhance property values; but would make a positive attraction. The planting of flowers and shrubs should be encouraged.

"Sidewalks and streets should be kept in good order, and kept scrupulously clean. We should emulate our neighbors.

"Our Board of Health should be energetic in the discharge of its duties. Vacant lots, back yards, front yards, stables and streets should be given their closest scrutiny and sanitary measures adopted and strictly enforced.

"Streets should be opened and all sections made accessible for the free delivery of mails and merchandise.

"Steps should be taken to macadamize and improve all inside streets, and strict provisions should be made for the maintenance of side walks.

"Merchants and property owners fronting the Great State Highway should be interested in a proposition to erect Ornamental Electroliters along this line, also in the completion of the street work, granite curbing and sidewalks.

"A Carnegie Library would be a welcome addition to our small list of Public Institutions, and should be interesting subjects for consideration by our improvement clubs.

"There are many ways and means to bring about better conditions, and improvements; but the Foundation of Success must first be built. We must work together honestly and faithfully for our common good. Eliminate nasty politics; cast selfishness to the winds, and adopt policies that will lead to the up-building of Daly City.

Sincerely yours,

EDWARD FREYER.

'Papa John' Biggio's 68th Birthday.

On Thursday of last week the Biggio home at Biggio Park was the happy scene of a most complete surprise, occasioned by the birthday of John Biggio, Sr.

The Biggios have a large rock and brick crushing contract at the San Francisco city hall and the men folks were busy in the city, so the party was arranged by "Papa John's" daughter-in-law, Mrs. Enrico Biggio and their charming daughters, Charlotte and Erminia.

Owing to the probable lateness that the men would return home, a ruse was made in which a telephone message was sent saying that a man was there who wished to buy or lease the Biggio Park. This worked splendidly, so, of course there was no hitch in the arrangements.

So overjoyed at the surprise was "Papa John" that he never thought of the prospective buyer until all were seated at the table that was laden with the most delicious Italian delicacies, including of course, raviolis, abalone, mussels, crab salad, chicken, etc., and then he inquired. Jim Downey had been acquainted with the ruse and at once proceeded to offer a dollar for the property that worth several thousand. This caused a great laugh of course and no one joined in more heartily than the grand man in whose honor the dinner was given.

Following the sumptuous repast, there was music and dancing until the midnight hour and every minute of the time was joy supreme.

Juorettes Organizing

One hundred prominent peninsula clubwomen have received invitations to attend a meeting Friday at the Burlingame town hall for organizing a feminine civic betterment league in San Mateo county. The grand juorettes, who served recently, are interested. One of the juorettes, Mrs. Mary Miller of Burlingame, is the temporary chairman of the committee. Mrs. Racine McRoskey, another juorette, is the secretary.

FOUL LANGUAGE

By Dr. S. Margolis.

He schemes in dark to spread despair,
At men he breaths with poisonous air,

Hate he heats with torrid blaze,
And pierces kindness with his gaze.
He mocks the Just, the Truth he bars,
Finds stains at Sun, the Moon, the Stars.

And East, and West, and North, and South

You find his black and cruel mouth.
He hates the day, but loves the night,
The brave he slanders and slights the right.

He kneads his sould in burning fire,
To spoil, to raze is his desire.

To breake the heights, to flattin the tow'r,

To dry the Rose, to crush the flow'r!

He does it all with ease and song,
Destruction is his serpent-tongue.

He comes to men and claims to save;
Don't trust! He means to dig a grave!

He tries to play "sweet love" to-day,
Tomorrow, you find, you'r given away.

He hides his nails, he curves his back,
Deceit is but his only knack.

He cuts, he stings the whole day long,
Just watch! It is the foul tongue.

Women Need Not Tell Age.

Judge Ellis C. Johnson, registration officer at Daly City, informs the Record that some women are not registering for the reason that they think they must tell their age. This is not true, except that the citizen male or female must be twenty-one or more years old.

MORE DOUBLE-(C)ROSS

SPELLMAN'S BID DID NOT INCLUDE WELL CASING

The farce-commodious—Daly City Board of Trustees—met in special session last Friday evening for consideration of the offers to buy the $90,000 water bonds.

The representative of the Denver financiers, who had offered $90,090, was present, saying that he had been in Daly City several days but was still unprepared to state definitely and thought it would take him several days longer to decide.

Landini gave an exhibition of his intelligence by first suggesting that Monday evening was all right, but the financial agent doubted if he could decide so soon, when Landini said: "No, that won't do anyway for its Lincoln's birthday." This caused a general titter, that caused Landini to say: "Washington's birthday I meant" and then everybody laughed. Finally, he said it was "Freyer's birthday" and then fell asleep.

Finally, the curtain arose and Mr. Freyer proposed that in order to give the gentleman time, it would be well to meet Wednesday night, which was carried, all voting yes except Landini—the first time in history that the solid three were divided.

That matter being disposed of the contract of erecting the municipal building by G. J. Doering was taken. Mr. Doering stated that City Attorney Morris, who was absent, had approved the bond and that he had secured men and teams and wished to commence work. But there was nothing stirring and Biebel said it was dangerous not to go slow and be sure that everything was all right, because there might be an injunction suit to stop the work.

This was diplomatic of course, but it made the financial agent, representing the Denver financiers, who remained until the meeting concluded, pick up his ears and then make a note of it.

The gentleman also made a note and winked at the Record reporter, when that $5,329.43 that has seemingly gone astray, was brought up. A committee was appointed to investigate the accounts of the city and report to the board, consisting of Biebel, Landini and Green.

"Report to the board," evidently means whitewashing or evading the issue, but the Record and the people will not stand for that stuff. What we want and must have, is a complete, accurate, itemized statement for the past twenty-two months. A statement that must give the name, item or service rendered and amount. For instance: "Blackie" Ford, no service, amount 000,000, etc. They dare not do it.

Wednesday evening, Feb. 18, 1914. All members present, also Consulting Engineer Roberts and Attorney Morris.

Communication and telegram received and filed from Toledo and Denver financiers relative to bond purchase.

Communication from Hanchet Bond Co. of Chicago, asking the withholding of action on bond sale until abstract can be obtained. Clerk ordered to furnish transcript and data.

The representative of the Denver financiers informed the board that he had been called to Montana, and would likely be prepared to give a definite answer on March 2.

Attorney Morris upon being asked by Trustee Freyer for details, stated that the outlook for the sale of bonds was very favorable in spite of the knockers and dis-incorporationists.

The contract of erecting the city hall by G. J. Doering was signed and his bonds approved, giving him 30 days for completion of the work.

Spellman was awarded the well-boring contract upon condition that he produce a bond to the amount of 50 per cent of the contract price.

Upon inquiry by Mr. Freyer, it developed that Spellman's bid did not include the well casing and this will have to be supplied by the city. (This is reminiscent of the Record's question, when speaking of this Double-(c)rossing before, "How do the people of Daly City know that they are not being Double-(c)rossed all the time?"—Editor). Spellman was awarded the contract—Freyer voting No.

The claim of Smith & Stewart, the city hall architects, of $100 balance due was laid over.

The claim of the Record of about six week's standing was not even mentioned.

Protests were made by property owners against payment of sewer work on San Jose avenue. Referred to Attorney Morris.

Meeting adjourned to meet next Tuesday, February 24 at 8 p. m.

CITIZEN'S LEAGUE OF DALY CITY

FOR BETTER GOVERNMENT

Never in the history of Daly City, or any other city for that matter, was there a more harmonious meeting than that of Wednesday evening at Biggio's Hall, when a well-selected committee of about sixty representative citizens met and discussed the civic situation and determined to inaugurate a campaign to nominate and elect efficient city officials to guard the best interests of our municipality.

Every section of Daly City was represented by intelligent and greatly interested citizens, all imbued with genuine spirit of civic pride who expressed their determination of ridding Daly City of the present incompetent members of the board of trustees, and elect in their stead thorough going men of business ability.

The meeting was called to order by Wm. M. Talbot, 546 Los Olivos avenue, with one of his best speeches, at the close of which a dozen of his hearers placed him in nomination for temporary chairman and his election followed by a unanimous vote. Thomas P. Moran, 134 Sikes avenue, was elected secretary.

The first order of business was the appointment of a committee to draft a preamble of organization, consisting of James H. Woodward, 475 Bellevue avenue, Edward J. Gozzett, 446 Los Olivos avenue, T. F. O'Rourke, 211 Green avenue. This committee immediately retired and after careful deliberation submitted their report as follows:

"This organization shall be known as the 'Citizen's League of Daly City.'"

"The object shall be for the advancement of Daly City and to elect city officials in an honest and fearless manner."

"Any voter (male or female) may become a member by signing the roll, under a pledge of sympathy with this organization."

This preamble was adopted by a unanimous vote, and the committee was granted further time to prepare the same in a type written form preparatory for signatures.

During the time the committee were absent and after their return to the room, every citizen present made short speeches. S. R. Emmon, of Myrtle street, that veritable old pioneer who has resided in this part of San Mateo county for over fifty years, was introduced and made a fine talk. In fact, he sounded the keynote to the situation, so that most all the other speakers admitted that he had expressed their sincere sentiment.

The general trend of every speech was the incompetency of the present governing force of the city trustees and a desire to replace them with competent officials who would and could advance the interests of the municipality in an effectual and satisfactory manner. On the matter of taxes, no one objected to the taxes providing they received something for it, and the utter lack of results of the present board, was spoken of by almost every speaker.

Trustee Green came in during these discussions after the close of a special meeting of the city trustees, and was called upon. He replied that his past two years experience had been the hardest he had ever endured, being compelled to sit in his seat utterly helpless to prevent the unwise things that were forced upon the people by the governing there. That he had endured the condition for the reason that he had been elected by the people and would not betray his trust, but now he is determined to retire and let another take his place. Mr. Green expressed his hearty sympathy with object of the Citizen's League of Daly City, and will do all in his power to aid in the good work proposed.

By motion the temporary organization was made permanent with Wm. M. Talbot, chairman and Thomas P. Moran secretary. Frank B. Woodward, 15 Wellington avenue was elected treasurer and an executive committee of five was appointed as follows: S. R. Emmons, Myrtle street; Robert E. Fine, 506 Green avenue; James H. Woodward, 475 Bellevue avenue; Arthur Bodine, Melrose street and Francis Murphy, Hillcrest Drive.

After some deliberation it was decided that the organization meet again this (Friday) evening for the purpose of perfecting the organization and to nominate a city ticket for the municipal election to be held on Monday April 13, 1914, and next Monday evening, a general meeting will be held at Knowles Hall to which every citizen of Daly City is invited.

ONE PREACHER WHO SEES

So often preachers don't see, it is a pleasure when one does.

"The men up here," writes Rev. Luther Long of Calumet, "demand not the giving of better conditions, but a share in arranging conditions; the recognition of their democratic rights."

Moreover, the fact that there is trouble isn't due to the presence or skill of "agitators," but to "the widespread and deep-seated feeling of unfairness in the relations between the owners of great industries and their employees" to greedy denial by a few of the elemental right of the many to a say in the ordering of their lives.

"Getting rid of the Western Federation of Miners," Rev. Mr. Long continues, "won't settle anything; until we find out what is the next step in the evolution of industrial democracy, dissatisfaction will remain, and may at any time be aroused in the new men brought in to take the places of those driven out."

Very obvious, isn't it?

Yet how many there still are who cannot or will not see it.

The laziest man is reported in Arkansas, where he conducts a shoe store in a little town. A woman entered his shop one day and said she wanted to buy a pair of shoes. The lazy man, who was sitting on a box at one end of his establishment, looked at her, yawned wearily, and then said: "I can't wait on you to-day. Come in some time when I'm standing up."

JUST GO ONE EVENING AND BE CONVINCED

BAD ROADS EXTRAVAGANT.

The Hon. Champ Clark says: "I saw it stated once that the energy, material, animal life and time wasted in this country by reason of bad roads amount to the enormous sum of $400,000,000 annually. This is astounding and may be exaggeration, but it is known that the waste is enormous. This state of affairs is so easily bettered that it is idle to, if not criminal, to let it continue. Twenty odd years ago I advocated building by convict labor four great roads across Missouri. I was twenty years ahead of my time, but I rejoice that what I suggested then, and even much more, is in contemplation and near fruition."

A Point In Their Favor That Has Not Received Much Attention.

They do this because they afford drainage. A good road can never remain a good road unless it is well drained. The roadbed must not have any standing water either on its surface or below the surface. It must have drainage, and the gutters beside the roads must have slope and be kept free from obstruction so that all surplus water can escape quickly and easily.

Good roads mean, therefore, not only a great saving of time and labour for the farmer, but the improvement in the hygienic conditions of the farming community. He is brought nearer to his market, the hauling capacity of his teams is greatly increased, and he is no longer marooned on his farm for many weeks each year owing to the impassable conditions of the roads. That health is promoted as well as comfort and wealth by good roads should give the argument for their construction irresistible force so that their building shall not cease until the whole country is lined with them.

Projected Construction of Experimental Road Sections In Scotland.

After stating the matter under advisement the committee decided to put down experimental road lengths in a number of districts in Scotland. Arrangements have been made for the location of these sections in parts of that country where the climatic conditions are suitable for the experiments and where the local surveyors will co-operate with the committee. Provisional arrangements with county surveyors have been made.

Rubber Roads.

The proposition to build rubber roads has been seriously put forward in London. It is said that the vibration in the streets due to the heavy solid tired motor trucks and omnibuses has become so great as to constitute a serious menace to the integrity of old buildings. It is, besides, in some portions of the city an intolerable nuisance to the office workers. The case of the region about St. Paul's cathedral is cited in particular. It will soon be a question there of reducing vibration at any cost. And, although it has been calculated that a rubber road to compete commercially with wooden blocks or asphalt must have a life of fifty years (which of course it would not have), the big cities may be driven to such roads in congested districts despite their high cost.

It appears that one of the first tangible results of the Henry Ford profit-sharing plan has been a decided boom in the marriage market of Detroit. Seventy-five of his employees have been married since the announcement of the plan. The marriage license clerk, who appears to be a bit of a philosopher, says:

This is precisely the result that Mr. Ford hoped would follow the announcement of his plan. He believed that assurance of increased pay and permanence of employment would encourage men to take up the responsibilities of family life, as well as encourage those who already had these responsibilities. In conversation he emphasized the fact that it was the family, rather than the individual, he planned to aid. Because working women as a rule had no families to support he omitted women from his plan, but in response to a direct question said that if he found a woman in his employ supporting dependent relatives she would be granted the same advantages as a man. Furthermore, if a man drawing his share of the profits should be found neglecting his family obligations, his bonus, if not his employment, would cease.

Has the hard, economic struggle of modern life deadened the appreciation of benevolence in men's minds? It is the new attitude of the people that a great and good deed shall be greeted with a sneer, and the prophecy that only evil will come from it?

THREE-CENT FARE A SUCCESS

Here are the facts:

Fares are NOW three cents each, with a penny extra for a transfer, which is returned when the transfer is used. To make up the over-draft, the plan is to give the penny to the company, yielding $750,000 extra in a year. But persons who don't need transfers—the great majority—will continue to ride for three cents. When the over-draft is made up, the transfer will again become free.

For three cents you can ride eight miles in Cleveland in cars as good, clean and comfortable as are to be found in any American city, run by workers who get top-notch pay; and for another penny you can ride eight miles further.

A million dollars will be spent during the next few months in constructing concrete docks at Sacramento. The voyage of the Grace Dollar has had quick results.

With deep-water transportation Sacramento must be reckoned with as the great interior collecting and distributing point of Central California. The metropolis of that vast and astonishingly productive region which stretches from the Tehachapis to the Oregon boundary must of necessity grow to be a great city—a formidable rival of the three other cities of the first rank which the State now boasts.

SAN FRANCISCO'S FINANCIAL CONDITION

"San Francisco has only $34,000,000 of bonds out and owns property worth $62,000,000, in addition to its taxing power over private property assessed 623,000,000. These San Francisco bonds are legal investment for Eastern saving banks, and are exceedingly attractive at the price.

THANKS.

THANK God for this bright frailty
of life,
The lyric briefness of its reckless spring.
Thank God for all the swift ad-
venturing,
The bold uncertainty, the strengthening strife,
Thank God the world is set to such a tune,
That life is such a proud and crashing
wave;
That none but lifeless things shall be time's slave,
Like the long dead but never tiring moon,
That godlike passion strangely leaps and runs;
That youth cannot grow old nor beauty
stale;
That even death is fragile and must fall
Before the winds of joy that speed the suns.

—Louis Untermeyer.

YOUTH.

WHAT do they know of youth who still are young?
They but the singers of a golden song.
Who may not guess its worth or wonder-flung
Like largess to the throng.
We only—youth no longer, old so long—
Before life's harmonies stand marveling—
Oh, we who listen; never they who sing!

NOT for itself is beauty, but for us
Who gaze upon it with all reverent eyes.
And youth, which sheds its glory
luminous,
Gives ever in this wise.
Itself the joy it may not realize.
Only we know who linger overlong
Youth that is made of beauty and of song.

WORTHY.

I MAY not reach the heights I seek;
My untried strength may fall me,
Or halfway up the mountain peak
Fierce tempests may assail me;
But though my soul I never see,
This thought shall always dwell with me
I will be worthy of it.

I MAY not triumph in success
Despise my earnest labor;
I may not grasp results that bless
The efforts of my neighbor;
But, though life's dearest joy I miss,
There lies a nameless strength in this:
I will be worthy of it.

ILLUSIVE BEAUTY.

I HAVE loved flowers that fade,
Within whose magic tents

A honeymoon delight—
A joy of love at sight
That ages in an hour—
My song be like a flower!

I have loved airs that die
Before their charm is writ
Along a liquid sky
Trembling to welcome it.
Notes that with pulse of fire
Proclaim the spirit's desire,
Then die and are nowhere;
My song be like an air!

Die, song, die like a breath
And wither as a bloom;
Fear not a flowery death,
Dread not an airy tomb!
Fly with delight, fly hence!
'Twas thine love's tender sense
To feast; now on thy bier
Beauty shall shed a tear.

That seek out their selfish ends.
There's companionship in the val-

But the man who tries for the lar-

Must travel the heights alone.

He must make for himself a path-

Where no other foot e'er trod
Till he grows complete in content-

As he learns to walk with God,
There is glory upon the mountain,
Though the summit is cold and

Yet the radiant burst of the dawn

Oh, spirit with godlike fire,
Whose depths are stirred by an in-

In the valley of life to stop,
But with purpose bold heed the

LOVE'S DANCE.

LOVE came dancing through the world,
And my heart was glad.
Love she came and danced with me
When the world was sad—
Danced and kissed me on the lips
'Till my blood ran mad.

AND forgotten was the world,
Gold and ruby's shine;
Folly came and to our lips
Pressed her ruby wine,
And I laughed, and danced we on;
Youth and Love were mine.

WISE ones sought to lure me back—
Wise ones gray and old—
Showed me Wisdom and Renown
And the glint of gold,
But they could not hear the tale
Love to me had told.

WHAT cares Love for great renown,
Gold or rubies then?
Beggars they who cling to these,
Leaving Love for mine;
Holding to their breasts but dross
While I drink Love's wine!

JOIN THE SUNSHINE CLUB

The Sunshine Club is in national convention. The country has been going through a period of reorganization, of many changes in methods. There was, quite naturally, a good deal of hysteria connected with the process, but the results, in the main, have been excellent. And now everybody, as by common impulse, has settled down to hopeful work.

The revival of cheerfulness and confidence has apparently come suddenly, just as the sun brightly rises some fair morning after long days of clouds and gloom. But, as a matter of fact, the fundamental factors of trade revival have been more in evidence for months to the discerning eye. And this makes it sure that good times are here to stay for a long time to come.

That confidence and cheerfulness are common anyone can see and hear with half an eye or ear. The feeling is in the air. Even the chronic pessimist grudgingly admits that things might be worse. And the optimist—that cheery chap who shoves the world a little farther along toward happiness every day he lives—knows that the country is simply going to swim in good business up to its ears.

The fundamental bases of good times are good crops and great mill activities—the sources of exchange. Wealth in its dynamic form, in exchange, in process of being sold and bought and consumed, is the only useful wealth. And with the promise of abundant crops all over the country, and with the mills beginning to run full time everywhere, while Europe withdraws more and more of its inhabitants from the work of production to fill the ranks of its non-producing armies, the world-conditions simply compel American trade to be active. Not even the stupid politicians can greatly hinder the action of these powerful economic forces and factors.

Say what you will, a cheerful optimism is an enormous force for activity and prosperity in trade and commerce. And had a cheerful optimism is now everywhere dominant is as plain as the nose on one's face. The country just naturally feels good, and nobody can make it feel any other way.

Let's all join the Sunshine Club and help to make things hum.

TWO MILLION DIVORCES IN THE UNITED STATES

"Present divorce figures show that early in 1914 more than two millions of divorces will have been granted in the United States during the past fifty-three years," was the statement made Friday by Dr. Francis Miner Moody at a luncheon given at the Union Square Hotel by the committee which is preparing for an international congress on marriage and divorce, to be held during the exposition.

There are only 18,000,000 married women in the country who could be divorced. Yet 110,000 divorces have been granted this year, a greater number than ever before. If these figures do not arouse the public conscience, perhaps the people will consider that 1,400,000 divorced orphans have been needlessly deprived of one or both parents. The inevitable result of such wanton destruction of American homes has been an increase in the attendance of reform schools, orphanages and the like at the rate of from 33 per cent to 100 per cent. From 25 per cent to 50 per cent of the inmates of these institutions are from homes broken by separation.

Acting upon the latter suggestion of Dr. Murphy, who is executive secretary of the international committee on the subject, Dr. Anna G. Lyle was asked to make an investigation of the record of delinquents in the Juvenile Court here to determine what ratio have come from separated parents. J. W. Henderson, president of the California Commission on Marriage and Divorce, presided. A finance committee was appointed, consisting of William H. Crocker, Rev. F. W. Clamcott, Mrs. I. Lowenbury, Dr. Lyle and Fred D. Parr. On the world's congress committee were named Rev. F. W. Clamcott, Judge Thomas F. Graham, Judge Henry A. Melvin, Rev. C. S. S. Dutton, Mrs. Gaillard Stoney, Mrs. Lowenbury, Arthur W. Johnson and F. D. Parr.

GOOD LUCK REWARDS COURAGE

Forty carloads of Malaga grapes, shipped from Dinuba last week, fetched $49,000 in return.

Around Dinuba the Malaga is the grape chiefly grown for table use, and it has been an accepted saying among vineyardists that selling prices of Malagas would fall off when the Tokays came to market. The fact that these Dinuba grapes have just brought the highest average price ever obtained for so many carloads simply shows that there is a market and to spare for all kinds of California grapes.

After some years of no great profit in many of the grape-growing districts, it is very gratifying to see the vineyards finally placed upon a plane of permanent profitability. The grapegrowers have struck to their business with admirable courage and tenacity and certainly deserve their reward of good luck.

HOW MILK WAS OBTAINED.

The old song said to rise in the world, Tim Finnegan carried a hod. But after a while Finnegan determined to rise swifter, so he got a situation as editor of a daily paper. Tim knew that he was not very qualified for the place, but added to his natural bent as a blackguard he had, from a fishwoman, acquired a startling vocabulary, and he trusted to that to succeed, and humor has it that he got along nicely.

"Well, they found Lopez in the mine."

"Yes. Was he starved?"

"No. He had been living all the time on milk."

"Where did he get milk?"

"He had the sheriff's goat."

The Fall Trade

It Brought With It Business of Another Kind

By MILLARD MALTBY

"Ethel," I said to my fiancée, "we must fix our wedding day either before the fall trade begins or after it is over, for I can't get away when it is on. If we fix it before it must be within, say, a month; if after we shall need to put it off for at least three months."

"I am afraid," said Ethel reflectively, "that it must be later rather than before. I've done very little in the way of getting ready and couldn't possibly complete my preparations within a month."

"You mean buy your trousseau?"

"Well, yes. But there are some small matters that need to be cleared up before we're married, and they all require time."

"Such as—"

"Oh, they are of no importance to you, simply affairs between me and acquaintances of mine."

"Obligations you wish to pay off?"

"Oh, no; not that at all. I'm not indebted to any one for favors."

"Old scores then?"

"That's more like it."

"Mention one of them."

"Well, there's Nell Blanchard. Last summer when we were at the Springs together she treated me very badly. Ned Franklin was there and devoted himself to me. Nell prejudiced him against me and got him away."

"What sort of a retaliation do you propose?"

"That's something I wish to speak to you about especially. You may object."

"Well, out with it."

"Why, the only way I can punish her is to show her that I can have him if I want him."

"Phew!"

"I was afraid you'd act mean about it."

"You mean that on the eve of your marriage with me you propose to bring down another man?"

"Only to punish Nell Blanchard as she should be punished."

"Do you think that it is treating me right to carry on a flirtation while making your preparations to marry me?"

"WHY DID YOU NOT TELL ME OF THIS FORMER LOVE AFFAIR?"

"But I'm telling you beforehand that it's for a special purpose. Besides, how many cases there are where everybody is surprised when an engagement is announced, persons saying, 'Why, I supposed she was going to marry So-and-so.' Nobody knows yet that we are engaged. How you will laugh in your sleeve when you hear of reports of my engagement to Ned Franklin!"

"It will be just too funny for anything, won't it?"

"And won't Nell be mad?"

"She'll burst for spite."

Being one of those fellows who consider the courting period a season wherein the girls are prizes to be gambled for, I saw no way but to chime in with my fiancée, pretending that I was quite willing she should remain in the ring till the last minute. Some men would have informed the lady that the old scores were ended upon her engagement and if she proposed to still take a hand in paying them off she must take back her freedom. But, for me, I never considered a girl a woman, but, rather, one to be played like a fish. I had supposed that I had landed Ethel, but now I saw that the landing must be deferred. So I told her that we had better put off our wedding till after the fall trade, and by that time I expected she would have paid all her indebtedness in the way of punishments and would have especially caused Nell Blanchard to rue the day that she had stepped in between Ethel and Ned Franklin.

At this she declared I must not imagine she would encourage Franklin.

We had a busy season, but I was not too busy to keep an eye on my fiancée. A lover is a pessimist, and I was by no means easy in my mind upon this vindication Nell was arranging for herself. Franklin I knew had been her favorite before I had appeared on the scene, and prior to our engagement I had suspected that I was serving for a snare by which to trap him. I heard something of his recent attentions to Ethel since she had begun her vindication, and some of my intimate friends, who knew that I was interested in her, began to look upon me with commiseration. Now and again I asked Ethel how she was getting on with her vindication, and she said that Nell was simply green with envy and jealousy.

I have never believed in defensive warfare. It is a military principle that the advantage preponderates to the attacking force. I considered bringing the matter to a focus by telling Ethel that if Nell was green with envy and jealousy nothing more was required and there was no further necessity for her playing Mr. Franklin in the matter; also that she had been reported to be engaged to him and all the surprise she could wish for would occur when her real engagement with me was given out, with the wedding soon to follow. But did not Ethel know all this without my telling her? And if she knew it what was to be gained by telling her?

If Mr. Frankl was destined to win in the game—as I strongly suspected he would—the end would be Ethel's giving me a rignol about her having unwittingly, unknowingly and unintentionally got into an unfortunate position and that she was obliged to give pain to me or Mr. Franklin and she was absolutely crushed; also that she had loved him and he had loved her till that horrid Nell Blanchard had come between them and made all the trouble. Then under such distressing circumstances I would be expected to do a magnanimous, noble part by relieving her of her frightful embarrassment by releasing her without blame.

One day I received a note from Ethel chiding me for not having been to see her for a week. She simply called my attention to the fact without comment. I replied that the fall trade was at its height, and I was working nights. I received another note stating that I had not worked every night, for I had been seen at the theater in company with a pretty girl a few evenings before. My reply to this was a confession. The young lady I had taken to the theater had once been a "flame" of mine. She possessed certain letters I had written her when I thought I loved her, which I was desirous to get into my possession before being married. In order to do this I must dissemble. When I had won her confidence I could the better devise a scheme for securing the letters.

I was quite sure this would bring matters to a climax, and it did. Ethel wrote me to come and see her at once. If I delayed she would send back the engagement ring I had given her. I thought over my next move and decided to go to see her. I found her very much troubled, though she endeavored to conceal evidence of the fact. Her face was heated, her eyes were restless and her bosom heaved.

"Why did you not tell me of this former love affair?" she asked in an accusatory tone.

"Because I supposed it was off long ago."

"And now it's on again."

To this I made no reply. I looked at the ceiling.

"Unless you wish to break with me you must drop it at once."

"I have not yet recovered my letters."

"Your letters! Nonsense!"

There was another silence. I took my eyes from the ceiling and directed them out through a window.

"Well, what are you going to do?" Ethel asked.

I responded in a quiet, reflective tone that if she would not object to my letters being used against me after my marriage with her I would let them remain where they were. I would call the next evening upon the lady possessing them and endeavor to persuade her to give up all idea of there ever being anything between us.

"Is it necessary that you should call to do that? Can't you write?"

"I committed myself in these letters I am anxious to secure and I should use diplomacy in the matter, just as you have been diplomatic in setting yourself right between Franklin and Nell Blanchard. By the by, how is that affair progressing?"

I looked at her with a cold stare.

"I have finished it," she replied ruefully.

"Indeed. It's a pity I had not taken up mine earlier; then they would both have been ended together."

"I thought you said you would end the matter at once."

"I said I would endeavor to do so."

She had taken hold of her engagement ring and was toying with it. I knew she was meditating taking it off and handing it to me.

"You would not have me treat a girl who loves me harshly, would you? You know how you have been situated with regard to Franklin."

There was a long silence. I thought it time to bring the matter to a focus.

"I will make you a proposition," I said. "Drop Franklin without a word, written or spoken, and I will do the same in my own case."

Another long silence, at the end of which she put out her hand to me. I clasped it, drew her to me and that was the end of paying off old scores. By this time the rush of the fall trade was over and we were married within a month. We passed over the border dividing the single from the married state, and prenuptial nonsense gave way to matrimonial conditions.

Coastwise Steamships and Canal Tolls

With regard to the question of canal tolls, my opinion is very clear. The exemption constitutes a very mistaken policy from every point of view. It is economically unjust; as a matter of fact it benefits for the present, at any rate, only a monopoly, and it seems to me in clear violation of the terms of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. There is, of course, much honest difference of opinion as to the last point, as there is, no doubt, as to the others, but it is at least debatable, and if the promises we make in such matters are debatable, I, for one, do not care to debate them. I think the country would prefer to let no question arise as to its wholehearted purpose to redeem its promises in the light of any reasonable construction of them rather than debate a point of honor.

So says President Wilson in a letter to William L. Marbury, of Baltimore, published in the papers of February 7. And how can any one favor a canal subsidy for coastwise steamships, which are already subsidized by having a monopoly of the coastwise business, when we have given our National word to England that all ships shall be treated alike? That is, any one who believes that our Nation should keep its word of honor?

The coastwise steamship companies, have put forth the argument that if the coastwise steamships have to pay tolls the railroads will raise their rates. Their mouthpieces for the publication of that assertion are such papers as the Chronicle and the Hearst papers. The Interstate Commerce Commission has power to regulate rates, and is regulating rates. The railroads cannot raise rates without the consent of the Commission.

The coastwise steamship companies, having been given a monopoly of coastwise traffic, are giving The People service that is almost indescribably bad. Between Seattle and San Diego a passenger on an American steamer cannot get a decent meal. Let any one travel to Seattle on an American steamer, and then take a Canadian Pacific or a Grand Trunk Pacific steamer for a Canadian or an Alaska port—and note the difference in the service. It is the difference between a first-class hotel and a village lunch counter. The American coastwise trade has been given to American steamers; it is a monopoly, or "favoritism," as the Chronicle says in defending it, and, as usual, the monopoly gives a minimum of service at a maximum of charge.

It is said that some members of the House and the Senate will fight President Wilson's proposal to repeal that portion of the Canal Act that permits coastwise steamers to go through the canal without paying tolls. While the President is not known as a warlike man, there is a very large suspicion that he won't run away from a fight when a question of principle is involved. When he was Governor of New Jersey, and some members of the Legislature refused to vote right on a matter of principle, he mildly suggested that he would go out with them to their districts and talk the matter over with their constituents.

Congressman Knowland and Senator O'Gorman will, it is said, oppose the President's recommendation for a repeal of the free-toll provision for American coastwise vessels. Such opposition may give the President an excellent opportunity to come to California and go to New York, and talk the matter over with the constituents of Knowland and O'Gorman.

There has been a great change in public opinion in regard to canal tolls since the Canal Act was passed. The bill was put through Congress with little regard for the Nation's promise. But the stand taken by President Wilson has received a cordial response, and we believe Congress will repeal that part of the act that, as President Wilson says, is economically unjust, benefits only a monopoly and gives to the nations of the world the belief that an American Congress has no honor.—Star.

Speaking of Habits

Habits may be either good or bad, and often good habits have bad results. A man with temperate habits, refraining from extremes and from anything that is likely to stir him from an equilibrium, may ultimately become superlatively static, good it is true, but not good for much.

Another may have intemperate habits. He may drink too much, or dance too much or work too much. Some sensational episode, such as a religious conversation, a swift and sudden twist into a new path of activity, such as social service, may transform the individual whose former habits were bad into a power for real good.

Now, too much church-going may become a good habit that resolves itself into a state of static nullity. And thus it is just as harmful as too much dancing. For both here lead not to salvation but to self-gratification and indulgence.

Compulsory church-going is bad. Voluntary church-going counts. Men need to be convinced, not so much that they ought to go to church as that they need a great and healthful stimulus for their lives and that the only place to get it is the church.

Express Rates Cut

The reduction of express rates by the State Railroad Commission, whereby the Wells Fargo Express Company was ordered to prepare new schedules affecting thousands of merchandise items, will go into effect on March 1. The commission has refused to postpone it any longer.

During the next six months the Wells Fargo Company will keep, in seven principal cities of the State, a record of shipments and earnings to be later compared with the revenue that would have arisen through the prevailing rates. At the end of that period the Railroad Commission will render a final decision that will govern express shipments in California.

Some alterations in the schedules first ordered have been made to adjust State rates to the interstate tariffs recently fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission. According to the Railroad Commission's estimate, the saving to the shippers of California will amount to $750,000 per year. The traffic records ordered between March 1 and November 1 will be kept in San Francisco, Sacramento, Stockton, Fresno, Los Angeles and San Diego.
